Maricopa County Supervisor Fulton Brock read Fairytale for Queen Creek Library Story Time

Once upon a time, Maricopa County Supervisor Fulton Brock, District 1, wanted to become personally involved with education programs in his district. Like a fairy godmother, Holly Paxson, Librarian Manager for the Queen Creek County Library, happily granted his wish. "I am thrilled that a county official wants to participate, hands-on, in our reading program," she says.

A father of three, Supervisor Brock has a keen interest in youth and education. "I am passionate about education," he says. "I want to be involved in some way to encourage young people to read and learn."

Close to 50 people gathered at the Queen Creek Library for Story Time on May 25th. Children sat on the floor and looked up at a bespectacled Supervisor Brock as he read a classic tale, The Frog Prince. A beautiful princess, a handsome prince and happily ever after...elements of a successful tale--and a successful Story Time.

Supervisor Brock will be scheduled to read for more Story Times in the future.

The five supervisors determine policy and set the budget for Maricopa County, the fourth most populous county in the nation. The Queen Creek branch is one of twelve libraries in the county system.
